Read about the cases of the cheerleader who was in the hot seat after she posted a photo of her “seat” on Snapchat while in uniform...the arrest and suspension of a student whose homemade clock was assumed to be a bomb...the appeal won in 2017 by a retired teacher who claimed her mesothelioma was caused by asbestos exposure in schools where she taught in the 1950s...

Find out which states last year relabeled under-performing schools as “Victory Schools”...named Augustynolophus morrisi the state dinosaur...adopted a statement of rights for teachers including the right to be treated with civility and respect...legislated that non-restroom breastfeeding accommodations be provided for students...removed the penalty of a fine and jail time for college and university instructors who fail to teach about the U.S. Constitution plus American institutions and ideals in U.S. history courses at the baccalaureate level...

The Yearbook of Education Law, published annually, is a hardcover volume that contains analyses of the previous year’s federal and state court decisions affecting private and public elementary and secondary schools and higher education. It covers all aspects of education law and includes a detailed index and tables of cases (alphabetical and by jurisdiction). The 2018 edition contains 12 chapters, featuring 20 chapter authors.
